Troops and heroes in the first slot fight from the front, those who are in the second slot fight behind the units that lead from the front. And finally, heroes/troops in the third slot fight from the backline/fast. So there are three lines / rows - front, middle and back. And there are three types of troops - Vehicle, Fighters, and Shooters. You can train or get vehicles from vehicle factories, fighters from fighter camp, shooters from shooting range. Depending on the task, you have to create a formation - If you are going to collect resources, then go with the vehicles, because their marching speed is quite high. Also choose heroes based on the task of attacking, place fighters in the front row, vehicles in the second row, and shooters in the last row. The first row must be the type of tank, because the units placed there fight from the front. Shooters are good at dealing with injury from range – its better to put them in the last line to go with all the fighters if you want defensive formation to play with different team set-ups for different tasks. Fighters – well soaking damage, vehicles – fast and can load more resources, shooters – good for dealing damage. Also choose heroes wisely. How to train more troops in time? The maximum that wach APC can have at any time is 100.Every when you walk your APC to attack or collect it costs a certain amount of stamina to make the number go down. If the cost of March is more than the strength you have left it will not allow you to do so. Think of it as maintenance that needs to be done to keep the APC in good order. Endurance renewal over time, but if you attack enemies, then you use it faster than it restores. To allow it to rebuild you just have to wait a while to let it increase again. There are studies you can do in the APC research rods that improve the speed of long-lasting renewal, but will still have to wait for it to go up before you can use this APC again. Farm accounts If you want benefits, it is recommended to conduct additional accounts raid. In the long run, if you don't do that, you'll get left behind. Farmer: Get them up to level 13 on t5 vehicles so you can collect them efficiently. Trader: One or two traders account level 13 can be milked for massive amounts of money. Research MAX for its rapid production and urban development ASAP. May seem useless now, but when you get a top-level base they add up the most. Do now and get it over with, because they are also the cheapest research trees. Get your class of APC maxed out and immediately focus on the Basic Combat tree. This tree provides bonuses to fight against zombies. If you ignore it you will get left behind by power-zombies is the main source of xp. You need xp to unlock hero skills and later hero skills are very devastating. Basic military training and advanced medical equipment should work for the same time. Get yourself a hospital bed and then focus on finishing the Basic Military for the final study that the tree provides a kill rate and its invaluable raider, which is serious about raiding during kill events. Total power (the figure shown on your profile) means nothing without good heroic ability, research and base level. If you feel that you are feeding your training so much and getting troops, don't even fit into your APC is OK not to train and focus on your city level with these resources instead. Site. the only power that matters is what your APC is and what you need to refuel it when you lose troops to attack. There are a lot of people who reach 1,000,000 capacity and lose it in one minute because they couldn't fit them into APC or strengthen them with research and base levels. Use one APC at a time and move the hero to the next APC when you run out of endurance in the previous APC. This will increase your EXP growth in the hero you've leveled. Your main goal for the hero now is to get to level 35 to unlock awaken skills. It is the 6th skill of the hero, and it provides an interest bonus to the first skill called the dictator. This increases your troop count by a lot. Focus on it, reach out, and win. There are three main APC formation arrangements a new player should be familiar with: First row: Fighter second row: Vehicle third row:

ShooterPros: Able to withstand the most enemy APC's, but having quite a high power due to the formation of vehicles. Cons: Weaker than High Attack formation and less power than High Capacity Formation.General Note: This is a standard  RECOMMENDED  APC formation. Very balanced between combat capability and plunder capabilities. First Line: Fighter In The Second Row: Shooter Third Row: ShooterPros: This APC formation provides significantly more fighting power by adding extra shooter line while maintaining defense of fighters in the first row. Cons: Less power, given that there are no vehicle formation. General Note: This APC is recommended for fighting against enemies with good APC's and later, with proper research, it can be very successful against all vehicles in the APC. First row: Second row of vehicle: Third row of vehicle: VehiclePros: Highest possible capacity in the formation process. Moreover, since the vehicles are also on the first line, it will have a much faster travel time. Cons: Without fighters in the first row it is much weaker defensively than the other two formations. The lack of shooters also reduces their offensive power. General Note: This APC should mainly be used to raid bases much weaker than your own, where you don't have to worry about widespread troop loss. There are two things to keep in mind when choosing which line to place the hero on. Skills 2, 5, and 8 are abilities skills. They attack enemy troops and suffer additional damage. However, these abilities are what is called an Effective Range. The effective range is between numbers 1 and 5 and determines how many squads the hero can hit. To fully understand the effective range you have to image your APC fighting enemy APC. Each formation consists of 3 squads / rows. This means that on the battlefield there are a total of 6 squads/lines fighting each other. Imagine your 3 squads facing their 3 squads inline. An effective range literally means how much row ability can reach in front of the hero, not into the heroes row. For example: Dawn Guardian has an effective range of 5. If you place Dawn in your back row Will go 5 rows in front of him (without insing your row). This means that he will reach past your middle (1 row) and your front row (+1 row) and then hit all three rows of the enemy (+3 rows making 5 total rows)! Making Dawn very useful in hitting every enemy squad from anywhere in your APC. Troop Compatibility Some heroes work only on some types of troops. It is very important that you keep an eye out for these heroes. Special characters with S1 label on the image. For example Dragon's Rage hero affects only Fighter troops so he has to be in a row out there fighters. Fighters.
